

TCMOW Volunteers Spreading Cheer!

Guy Richardson, a kitchen volunteer on Thursday mornings, in addition to helping at TCMOW, has another "career" in retirement. He's become a clown.

At the Dyngus Day Parade, he was the hit of the show. His clown name is Kazoo.

When he sent this photo in (and my apologies for not using it last month) he noted that even the mayor wanted a photo with him.

He's involved with Niagara Clown Alley, taking part in many local parades and events.. He is also involved with Caring Clowns, a group of clowns that entertain in nursing homes every month, a welcome guest to those who often have little to smile about.

Congratulations to Guy for his extracurricular activities that keep him young and bring joy to young and old alike!

And, speaking of volunteers, here is a picture of Monday server Gwen Opalinski delivering Meals to retired Pastor Ron Crane.

Gwen said this delivery is one of her favorites as the pastor comes outside to visit with she and Kay Brennan, an added plus!
